

WELCOME

Welcome to Melbourne!

We are taking the big leap – for many of us around more than half of the world – to the exciting country down under with its strange species of animals and its fascinating landscape that stretches from the countryside to the reefs surrounding parts of this vast continent. The 11th ISUOG World Congress in Melbourne follows 10 successful congresses around the world since our legendary first congress in London in 1991 organised by our founding president, Stuart Campbell.

Major contributions have come from our host continent throughout the years. Australia's traditions in the history of ultrasound include both technical and clinical development of the technology that has been bringing us all together year after year. These traditions are reflected in the program which I believe is the finest ever. There are mind challenging, cutting-edge sessions where the new hot research is presented. And of course there are the traditional plenary sessions with state of the art updates on the use of ultrasound in the area of medicine where it is expanding most – gynecology and obstetrics.

ISUOG is growing and thriving more than ever. Our organisation has seen the great educational challenge that the use of ultrasound is facing across the world and we are at work – world wide – promoting the teaching and training of ultrasound in our field of medicine. Our ISUOG World Congress continues to bring together the users of ultrasound throughout the world, year after year. Our newly instituted ISUOG International Scientific Meeting will make it possible for even more countries to organise international meetings with the prime focus on promoting the use of ultrasound in their region. The ISUOG Outreach Program has established its role in taking care of the training needs of colleagues who are implementing or developing ultrasound in their own countries. ISUOG Approved Courses and our Basic Courses, as well as our popular ISUOG Advanced Courses, have all had great success in the past year and will soon be organised in many more countries throughout the world. All of these activities demonstrate the important role ISUOG has attained throughout the world.

I welcome each one of you and wish you a challenging and stimulating week in this fascinating city of Melbourne.

Sturla Eil-Nes
President, ISUOG

INTRODUCTION SCIENTIFIC PROGRAM

We are proud to offer an exciting program in obstetrical and gynaecological ultrasound which features a large faculty of invited speakers who have had a dominant role in shaping our specialty. The program combines cutting edge research topics, an opportunity to present new work, with, for the first time at a World Congress on Ultrasound in Obstetrics and Gynaecology, an ISUOG course in both obstetrics and gynaecology. This course runs as parallel sessions with the "cutting edge" presentations of the invited speakers throughout the meeting.

The meeting will highlight audience participation and new developments. Audience participation will be facilitated by 'Meet the Professor' sessions and if you have not already done so it is advised to check at the registration desk for bookings as numbers for these sessions are limited. In addition, an electronic audience voting system will be used in the course. Pre and post congress courses have been designed to allow registrants with specific interests to pursue them in more depth.

We are particularly indebted to our invited speakers who freely give their own time and come to our meeting at their own expense.

SESSION 1

Coryong 2

Chair: Reuwen Achiron

Co-Chair: James Grimwade

This seminar will allow registrants to watch the experts scan normal and abnormal fetal hearts. Neither the experts nor the registrants will know the diagnosis in advance. This will provide a rare opportunity to observe and analyse the techniques of world experts, who will also show some of their interesting cases.

The role of 3D cardiac scanning is included. Clinicians will help develop an understanding of the prognosis for the abnormalities we detect.
